

POLICING COMMUNITIES OF COLOR:

PRACTICALITY VS. LEGALITY

A Candid Conversation with Judge David S. Cunningham and Professor Devon Carbado

What effect does knowing your rights have when encountering the police? Should you (and how would you) assert those rights to avoid a potential physical escalation? Are there consequences to asserting those rights? Judge David S. Cunningham (former Los Angeles Police Commission President) and UCLA Law Professor Devon Carbado will discuss the intersection of legal knowledge and the practical realities people of color face during police encounters.

Asian Pacific American Bar Association of Los Angeles County

Date: Thursday, November 12

Time: 6:30 – 8:30 PM

Location: Loyola Law School (Donovan Hall)
919 Albany Street, Los Angeles, CA 90015

RSVP:
<https://goo.gl/yv8T9I>

This is a free event. A light dinner will be served.

This is APABA's second installment in its Policing Communities of Color series. Please join us for what promises to be an engaging and important discussion.